If you visit China you must visit its Great Wall. It is one of the most important landmarks of China. It is also a wonderful experience to walk on the wall which Chinese people call "the great sleeping dragon".

The Great Wall of China is over 8500 km long, and goes from the east to the west of China. The wall was built over two thousand years ago by the Emperor "Ming Tao Lee", in order to protect the country from attacks. All along the wall, seven thousands 'watching towers' were built to guard the wall.

This universal landmark is made of stones, wood and bricks. Many parts of it were destroyed through the history but were rebuilt again by the different emperors who ruled china. In 1987, the Great Wall of China was listed as a UNESCO world heritage site. As the wall is so long, it was impossible for China to repair and protect all of it. Sadly, one third of it is damaged and destroyed now. China has a special museum in Beijing which presents historical documents and plans related to the wall.
